

The Filibusters:

Theme: Non-Entities

Overview: Due to the incessant hunting by the sleepers they had created an “ecological” niche that was filled by very evil and apathetic forces. The strongest and most evil are the filibusters which completely dominate the world since 2002 to right now.

Description: The filibusters are an “evolved” version of non-entities. After 9/11 and the internet went mainstream, non-entities stopped popping out of existence. So the rate of them popping into existence never evened out, making an overpopulation. Oftentimes when you read weird posts, or see gore videos, or other such horrible opinions it’s often from Filibusters looking for prey. Filibusters are what happens when a non-entity stays alive for too long, each non-entity enters a state of metamorphosis at least a year into their life cycle. They first isolate themselves and cocoon for a long period of time, they hoard food, entertainment and technology not being seen for months. Then they hatch, turning into their piles as a kind of hand puppet machine thing, emerging out from the pile. It spends the majority of its time on the internet feeding directly off of emotions, often negative emotions. These sources constantly talk ejaculating data and feeding off of each other’s inputs the same way dogs eat vomit. This creates a kind of self-fulfilling loop where filibusters lock in on a target or topic and hammer it in until they wring out all of its emotion and they move on. Filibusters require a kind of “surrogate” non-entity to serve as their errand boy, these surrogates are often the literal shell of the filibuster only puppeteered by its reliance on cellular communications constantly talking and doing things requiring constant attention and feedback to live. It’s unknown how many of them are out there, but the most liberal estimates are that they and non-entities make up 1/3 of the global population.

Stats: (I have no idea)

What you Hear:

- Hey did you hear that the president and all his men may be filibusters?
- Hey I’ve been getting these weird messages from random people could you look into that?
- A mutual friend you know in the underground has been dubbed a “lolcow” by people on the web. They’ve been weaker and stranger than usual lately.

The Warrior:

Theme: The War on (Noun)

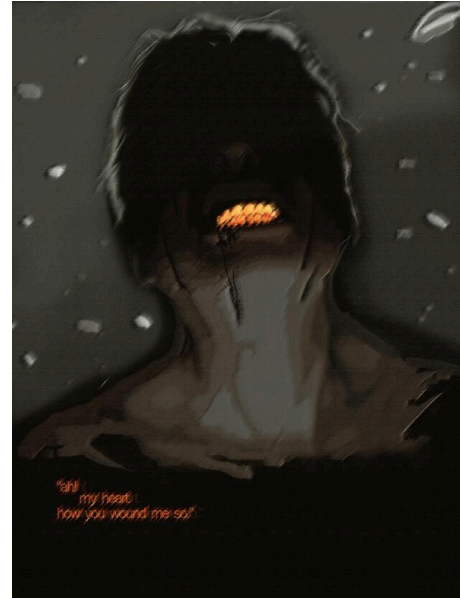

Overview: Certain avatars obtain different characteristics as time goes on. As the great peace ushered unto the world due to the end of the cold war. Many would think that warfare and violence would stop, but paradoxically warfare and violence exploded in power compared to other archetypes. The sadness, apathy, and “erectile dysfunction” that appeared after the winning of the cold war transformed a pivotal archetype into a more vague and surreal entity. The warrior appeared, angry, bitter, and bloodlusted on anything and everything.

Description: The warrior is an extremely powerful Godwalker that emerged out of the paranoia and violence after the September 11th attacks. The warrior feeds off of all that kind of negativity, the war on drugs, the war on barney, the war on terrorism, the war on obesity he's there. Somewhere in the corner of the shot, dancing along to kesha with the little fat kids. Or in the crack houses, or in a swat uniform busting into said crack houses. He plays all sides, so he always wins and accumulates all the charges from each of these situations. As more and more wars are declared, fake or real he benefits from it. The warrior constantly seeks battle, and has essentially no ideological bend to any of his actions. Only seeking out combat to spend his charges and combat to gain charges, a kind of self-fulfilling cycle of violence with him winning.

Stats: (idk how I would stat him, something like the godwalker, very powerful avatar magicks and adept magicks that he learned from cannibalizing and assimilating those he shuns and “eradicates” out of the world)

What you hear:

- Through your TV watching you've noticed a certain face in lots of crowds, on drug busts on the news, or on anti-drug PSAs on cartoon shows, odd.
- In Iraq you've seen some weird white haired guy with yellow amber teeth around camp, really edgy looking and quick on the trigger, you think he's killed like 30 people. You haven't even got 1.
- You've been waiting all year for this black friday sale, and in the Walmart you've both seen a guy selling people stuff and beating old women for toaster ovens and elmo dolls. weird.

Lizard Man:

Theme: Conspiracy Culture

Overview: We all know bush had something to do with the attacks. Something shady with o'le baby bush, him and dick, who names a kid dick anyway?!? The old reptile knows who, he knows all about that kinda stuff, and he'll let everyone know it. Where as Mak Attack tried to enlighten humanity, the old lizard seeks the opposite, only through regression and madness can we shift the collective. That madness will overwhelm the world and swallow it whole, with the tigers dancing for more and more. You can hear the how and why 24/7 hours a week on your radio, your TV, your Xbox and your computer screen, all for free of course!

Description: The lizard man is a powerful adept who wishes to fix humanity by making it destroy itself to a degree. Lizard man is his handle, a kind of tongue in cheek way of saying his true name, something like Ralph Lizardman or something like that. Like how mak attack cannot use the true name of their company, lizard man utilizes powerful magick he stole from somewhere or other. His priority is to continue his media empire to spread to every part of American society, he wishes to convince the average American of occult beliefs through political, cultural, and religious. Often packaging them as reasonable opinions. He sees that eventually a sort of “man on the inside” kinda like Ross Perot would emerge. They in the near future would shape America into fixing itself with faux occultism that could steer us into an age of aquarius with a conservative lens.

Stats: (idk what I would put there, he is a human adept just weird morally and probably hardened towards the supernatural and isolation)

What you hear:

- At Thanksgiving you do a double take as your uncle off handedly mentions a deep magickal term you picked up from mak attack just out of the blue. You think the process is working until you hear the rest of the sentence...
- While working late the boss puts on talk radio to kill time, you're doing your business and you hear your organization's name among a string of “satanic freaks” trying to destroy america. You grow cold.
- You're at a bar and a short sweaty man with a bright red fez smokes a long cigar. He walks up to you and asks about deeply esoteric subjects, handing you his card simply with a phone number, a crushed starfish and a fig sign, some kind of recruiter.

The Furry:

Theme: The Internet

Overview: There are other gods than the clergy. The clergy try to hide this fact from you, with their avatars, with their houses of renunciation, and with their manipulation of the zeitgeist. But these old gods still lurk, oftentimes most of them are long dead, their corpses feeding new baby gods which will look to the sea that is the internet for metamorphosis. But some of the oldest still wait, feeding off of comic artists, and animators in the meantime like a python. One of the oldest and strangest has found purchase in the early internet, among forums, among artist groups, among pornographers anything to survive, that is animal law.

Description: The furry is an ancient “psychological” god adjacent to the invisible clergy. The furry is a kind of connection piece between the larger occult underground and the furry underground. The invisible clergy is distant and surreal with their communications when working with avatars. The furry is more “direct” in its ways of leading its representatives, it talks to you in either dreams, or through various internet methods (pop up ads, random messages, forum arguments...etc). It encourages the user to behave in “other-kin” type ways with the more dedicated to the animal and animist veneration. Grants functionally identical abilities as the clergy does to avatars.

Stats: (I have no idea, something for their “avatar” idk if that would even work)

What you hear:

- Your nephew has begun to collect and draw images of human animals. He’s been seen roaming the streets in vague shapes of these drawings.
- You flip through the tv and stick to a children program about talking animals, a lot of those recently. Later you begin to get a strange set of dreams about you turning into a humanoid animal like them. Then the messages start.
- You took out your trash yesterday and a racoon on the fence opposite of you told you a URL. When you typed it in, it was an art forum for a weird talking animal comic.

The Triplets:

Theme: Paranoia

Overview: Oftentimes it is forgotten in the wider perspective that all humans are individuals. Many conspiracists and occultists often forget those in charge are just people (they were at least). There often is not a cabal at the top of the world, the illuminati were scrubbed out of the world by the tiger like all the others who tried to lead them to water. The triplets are not that, they are three people, brothers, sisters, cousins, friends...

you've met them, you've heard stories about them, and they've heard stories about you. When often disregarding the ills of the world there is a

"them" or "the man" those are the triplets. The triplets learned all you need to control the world is three people in various random parts at any given time.

Description: The triplets are 3 very powerful demons that have decided to work together to take over the world. The triplets forgot or chose to forget who they were, bankers, merchants, something in either law or numbers. The triplets utilize important people at various parts of the world to tilt the economy towards their favor. They are often seen crawling around wall street, and on internet forums, and in ballrooms talking to senators. You never remember their faces, just their words, something about "Saddam's got WMDs" or "you get aids by touching toilet seats" stuff like that. They are a large-scale threat to every part of society since they wish to scrub out the underground while cherry picking those who they want to work for them. The new inquisition is their main and often only enemy. The inquisition noticed them early on and fanatically is running around important parts of the world to find and steal techniques from them. An economic and magickal cold war has started.

Stats: (Idk how you would stat them out, i'm never good at that kind of stuff)

What you hear:

- You go to get milk one day and as you pass by an alleyway a strange checkered suit man with a bright red tie asks you to carry a plunger with you, dropping it off near the park. He hands you 6,000 dollars of straight cash, promising 6,000 more when you complete the job.
- At your cousin's quinceanera you overhear a conversation with your business savvy relatives about junk bonds. The man leading the conversation is a fat mexican fellow with a bright red tie and a checkered suit.
- At a business retreat you catch a glimpse at an Enron business meeting, everyone in attendance has bright red ties on their heads as three checkered suited men with bright red gold teeth, and black baggy eyes give a speech on tax returns.